Thought for September

Back to Routine

September is often regarded as the month when events and activities resume after the summer break. Perhaps children and young people notice this change more than most of us as they move into new classes at school or begin a college or university course which involves moving away from home for the first time.

I wonder how we approach changes in life and moving on to something new. Perhaps our summertime thoughts have involved some reflection on past weeks, months or even the past year as well as planning for the future. No doubt the holiday for those who have had a break has been a rest and a renewing of energy for the coming winter months.

With life so demanding and busy, how can we remain with a refreshed mind, open to take up the challenges of life? Many people seek meditation as a way of freeing their mind of clutter and focusing for a while on peace and contentment. Many of the popular religions promote this way of being. What about Christianity? Do we take time out to meditate and reflect on our lives, perhaps sharing a little time for thinking about other people who suffer in one way or another?

Jesus offers a good example because he sometimes took time away from the demands of the crowds who were persistent in seeking his teaching and healing services. He went out into the country, to the quietness of the hillsides so that he could be quiet and pray to God.

John's gospel tells us that Jesus prayed for himself, his disciples and for all believers and that means us. It is a pattern of thinking that helps us care for others, ourselves and our world.

Rev'd Jenny West (Associate Minister)

A new piece of play equipment will be installed on the Junior Playing Field this month. The project is grant funded by Awards 4 All. Playground inspections will be carried out by RoSPA during the month of September for the Junior Playing Field and the 8 Acres Trim Trail.

THE SAUCER

San Francisco is home to hundreds of little stores that sell both worthless junk and valuable antiques. Savvy shoppers can find some real treasures among all the debris. One day an antique connoisseur walked into one of these stores. Browsing the items for sale, he came across an unremarkable cat drinking milk from a saucer on the floor. The man immediately recognised this saucer as genuine Ming Dynasty, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. And here it was on the floor, with a cat drinking milk out of it. The shop owner obviously did not know its worth. Immediately, the man started scheming how to get it for cheap, without the shopkeeper knowing what he was selling. He turned to the shopkeeper and said, "You know, that's a very striking cat you have there. I'd really like to buy your cat." "Well," answered the shopkeeper, "the cat is not really for sale." "I insist," the man replied. "Would you take $100 for the cat?" "That's very generous," said the shopkeeper with a shake of his head. "I don't think this cat is worth $100, but if you want the cat that badly, you can have it." The man paid for the cat and then, as if he'd just thought of it, said, "Oh, one more thing, I'm going to need something to use as a feeding dish for the cat, so I'll give you another $5 for that little saucer there on the floor." "Oh, I could never do that," said the shopkeeper. "You see, that's no ordinary saucer. That's a piece of rare china from the Ming Dynasty and its worth is incalculable. But amazingly enough it upgrades the worth of cats. God also used it, ever since I started feeding my cats out of it, I've sold 12 cats."

That shopkeeper degraded something of great value to upgrade the worth of his cats. God also used something of great value to redeem us and to give us life---Christ, who was degraded on the cross so that we could be upgraded to eternal life. As a result, we have become priceless treasures. On the other hand, customers who didn't know any better walked by the cat's milk dish without realizing that they were walking past a treasure. Next time you walk past what look like ordinary persons, don't be fooled. They're treasures – people God loves so much that he sacrificed his Son on their behalf.
